

Carousel Industries Named Extreme Networks Top Diamond Revenue Partner for 2009

Exeter, Rhode Island, November 9, 2009 – Carousel Industries, a leading premier technology solutions provider, announces that they have been awarded Extreme Networks, Inc.'s Top Diamond Revenue Partner of 2009. Diamond elite partners overall are resellers that achieve significant contributions to sales revenue and also promote certification and education of staff within their organizations. The result is a true partnership, including expert design and installation of leading-edge converged network solutions and world class support of customer networks.

“Carousel Industries truly shined in 2009, both as a valuable Diamond-level Extreme Networks partner with the highest revenue and by demonstrating its total commitment to technical solutions and the highest levels of customer service,” said Christopher Rajiah, director, North American Channels for Extreme Networks. “Looking to the future, I am confident that our success will continue as we help enterprises harness the power of their converged networks.”

Carousel’s team of highly qualified data engineers can design and implement complete infrastructures that run seamlessly throughout your organization. Carousel works with the best in breed technology partners like Extreme Networks to provide customers customized and innovative solutions.

“We are honored to receive the designation as the top revenue achieving Diamond Partner for Extreme Networks in 2009,” said Bill Annino, Director, Converged Network Solutions for Carousel Industries. “The close alignment with our goals offered through the Extreme Networks Channel Partner Program and the differentiation achieved through its network solutions make for an enduring relationship. We look forward to continued success in 2010.”
